An Evening Echo.

It were great injury to the person, and no small offense to the commonwealth, to behold a man basely tolling that deserveth to govern, and to see him govern that deserveth to go to the plow.—F. BERNI.

The only way it can be figured out that a Pittsburgh millionaire gave an automobile as a tip to a head porter of a New York hotel is that the automobile was about six years old and ready for the scrap pile.

According to the Parkersburg Dispatch-News, it is characteristic of that city to see the doughnut and not the hole. That is a good way of looking at things generally. Over here in Clarksburg the people see not only the doughnut and the hole but the fire, the stove and the rest of the bakery.

According to a contributing Harrison county statistician, it is seventy-six and a half miles from Clarksburg to Weston by way of the West Fork river, in view of which fact it would be a trifle more speedy for people to take either the trolley car or the railroad in making a trip to the Lewis county capital.

One of the latest efforts toward reducing the cost of living is that of abstaining from eggs, a single one of which costs almost as much in certain quarters as a whole dozen did a few years ago. This may afford a key to a plan whereby the cost of living may be reduced in other instances.

Still Waiting.
What has become of the sad-eyed gentleman who not long ago said that the Underwood bill would be the cause of the flooding of our markets with European products and bring ruin and stagnation and all that sort of thing to American industry?—Parkersburg Sentinel.

He is still waiting for the reduction in the cost of living and in the expense of American manufacturing, which the Democrats promised so faithfully would be brought about by this same Underwood bill.
He is still sad-eyed.

No Excuse for Existing.
If there is any excuse for further existence of the Progressive party in West Virginia, the average mind fails to see it. Only those of it Socialist in tendency can give any real reason for its existence, after reading the following review of the recent progressive accomplishments by the Republican party in this state:

"To get right down and to the point, the real meat contained in the cocoanut shell, the person who can give a good definition of a Progressive, giving the difference between that particular animal and a Republican, so far as West Virginia is concerned, is entitled to an oyster stewed in real cream. One of the main charges made against the Republican party as it existed prior to the last campaign was that the Republican state committee was controlled by ring politicians. The membership of the committee has been doubled and today the acting chairman, Harry B. Curtin, is recognized as progressive in all matters. So far as legislation is concerned the last legislature enacted probably more real progressive legislation, to use the real meaning of the word, than any of the states did where the Progressive party is in control. A primary election law was about the only thing that miscarried and this would likely have been added to the list had not the State Senate been practically a tie. If there is anything more that any Progressive, except those of a Socialist temperament, could ask, is not recorded in the log-book. Advance steps were taken for better roads, including the working of prisoners on roads, a registration law was passed, while the creation of the public service commission itself is looked upon as the most advanced step taken in many years. This commission, besides regulating public service corporations, including hydro-electric companies, has charge of the enforcement of the workmen's compensation fund act.

"There remains nothing in the way of advanced legislation which is not favored by the Republican just as much as by the Progressive party. As a result a reasonable excuse for the existence of the Bull Moose party in West Virginia is hard to find."

Misapprehensions Dispelled.

It would be a very difficult task as well as a most tedious one to give a complete and clear summary of the workmen's compensation act of this state. Various sections of it have been quoted in newspapers from time to time and explained but even that together with a copy of the act itself does not make the law very clear to many employers. Whenever possible it gives the Telegram pleasure to reproduce explanations of the act, when it thinks they will be helpful to the public. Classification of certain industries as urged by the governor brings out the following editorial by the Wheeling Intelligencer which should dispel certain misapprehensions:

Misapprehensions concerning the effect and operation of the workmen's compensation act seems to be quite general. Under the law providing the first application of the act, the rate of payment by any employer is limited to one per cent of the payroll. It is obvious that this limitation is too low. One per cent will not properly compensate for the casualty charge in extra hazardous occupations, particularly in the mines. Employers in less hazardous occupations seem to think that they are likely to be taxed to make good the casualty damage in the mines. This is not true, or, if true, it will be only temporary.

The law provides that on January 1, of each year, all occupations shall be re-rated by the commission, and every class shall stand upon its own record. In other words, if the experience on January 1 shows that the mines have been rated too low they will be rated higher. If it shows that the iron and steel mills, the stamping plants, the glass factories, the potteries, have been rated too low, they will be rated higher. If it shows that the merchandising establishments, the bakeries, the plumbing shops, have been rated too high, they will be rated lower. Every industry employing labor is subject to the compensation act. No employer can afford to refuse its provision, but every employer will be classed with like employers, and every industry will pay its own charge for the killed and injured. Already some two hundred thousand dollars have been paid into the treasury of the workmen's compensation board, but more than eighty per cent of this money has been paid by mine operators. Other employers have not been so quick to realize the intent and purpose of the law.

Temporarily, or until more careful inspection and classification of industries can be made, inequalities are bound to exist. Classification and rating cannot be reduced to a mathematical nicety, but the rating by the board on January 1, will be based to some extent on actual experience, and further ratings, on January 1 of each year, will be based upon longer periods of time, and will enable the board to form just and accurate classifications.

The Burning Question.
It is no pun to state that the incinerator has become the burning question in Huntington. Everybody admits the city must have the incinerators, but nobody is willing to have the destroyers set up in his neighborhood.—Huntington Herald-Examiner.

The Reason.

Women are becoming more and more averse to vaccination and are taking long chances of contracting smallpox rather than have the serum needle applied. The reason is apparent. It has become impossible to vaccinate them where the scar won't show.—Bluefield Times.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidney if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Advertisement.

Men's styles are becoming, each year, a more and more important factor. Makers and dealers study them more closely. There is more news to tell.
